Height without petals and stem: about 6"(16cm) / Measure around the body: about 22.5"(57cm)

Making Steps

1. Choose your Otenko and print out the pattern on a Letter or A4 size paper.
For print setting, select [Actual size] option or scale the image to fill the whole page. Check the scale bar is right size.
2. Trace the pattern shapes onto tracing paper, or make two copies of the pattern page and cut them out.
Watch for the overlapping shapes.
3. Transfer the pattern shapes and guide marks onto back side of the fabric/felt and cut them out.
Do not forget to leave 1/2" (1cm) margin of seam allowance for the body/nose fabric.
Be careful with the number of each cut pieces and their left/right orientation.
4. [FACE] Make the mouth first. Sew the two front panels of body together. Place the eyes and nose.
[SIDE] Insert the petals into slit and sew them on from the back side. Top petal is sewn across the both side panels.
[STEM] Sew embroidery or fold-in on the leaves first. Insert them into slits on the stem and sew them on.
Sew up the stem, while wrapping the wire inside (if desired).
5. Sew the two back panels of body and stem together.
For Boktai Otenko, the stem comes out from the center of the back.
For LK(DS) Otenko, the stem comes out from the half point between the center and bottom of the body.
Sew on the stem-base tightly between the body and the stem.
6. Sew the [FACE] and [SIDE] parts together and sew the cheeks on, then sew the front and [STEM] parts together.
Before closing the seam, stuff with plenty of cotton. Remove all pins and markings, then hug your Otenko!
